$$$$$The other side of being a millionaire! $$$$$

1. SECOND CONDITIONAL

Before I won the lottery, two years ago, I used to say: “If I (have) _____ money, I would do so many things. I (buy) _____ a house and a couple of new cars if I won the big prize in the lottery. Also, if I won the lottery, I (travel) _____ around the world. If I (be) _____ rich, I could go to all the concerts of my favorite singers. If I (meet) _____ Lady Gaga in one of her concerts, I would try to convince her to go for a drink with me so I could ask her all the information I’m curious about”.

STRUCTURE: If + _____, + _____

2. FIRST CONDITIONAL

The day I had always dreamed of finally became true two years ago, and my life has changed drastically ever since. Before I won the money from the lottery, my life was much more interesting than it is now. For example, before I used to say: “If I work hard this week, I _____ probably _____ (have) some extra money for this weekend. If I earn extra money, I _____ (be able) to buy the dress I saw in the mall. If I _____ (keep) studying hard, I will get my degree soon. If I get good grades, it _____ (be) easier to find a good job. And if I try hard to get what I want, I _____ (feel) great satisfaction when I achieve every one of the goals I have set for myself”.

3. ZERO CONDITIONAL

However, now that I am rich, it is very easy for me to get what I want. There is no real satisfaction or feeling of achievement. For instance, if I get bored with my car, I just _____ (go) to the car agency and change it. If I _____ (want) to travel, I call the travel agency and they organize everything for me; I don’t have to plan or worry about anything. If I want to eat in the most popular and fancy restaurant, I only _____ (have) to dress up, and _____ (bring) either my credit cards or my check book. If I want to buy something, I _____ (not/need) to go to the store; I can order everything from the Internet.

STRUCTURE: If + _____ + _____

You see, everything is so easy. Now I’m convinced that my life was much more exciting before I won the lottery.
