

Going to vs. Will

-Going to is used when the speaker wants to express a prior plan.

-Will is used when the speaker wants to volunteer or offer help right at the moment of speaking. There was no prior plan.

-Both will and going to are used when the speaker wants to express a prediction.

Answer the questions with the appropriate form of Will or Going to. Use your imagination.

1. What are you doing this summer?

2. Can someone erase the board?

3. Where is your brother?

4. How is the weather?

5. Could someone throw out the trash?

6. What is this paint for?

7. Why do you have all those books on the table?

8. Can you tell me my future?

9. When is Jill coming from Hong Kong?

10. Who's at the door?

11. Can someone give me my coat?

12. Do you have plans for the weekend?

13. Why are you all dressed up?

14. How do you see this company ten years from now?

15. Are you tired?

Myra M. Medina
Miami Dade College