Easing the trouble at the airport parking lot.

Underline the nouns that function as direct objects. Not all the sentences have direct objects.

1. The new public garage at the airport will open this summer.
2. Hopefully, travelers will have more parking options.
3. The new parking garage will charge $10 a day.
4. It is located near the terminal.
5. If you must park farther from the terminal, shuttles are available to pick you up and drive you to your terminal.
6. These shuttles run every 15 minutes.
7. There are thousands of passengers who drive into the airport on a daily basis.
8. Because many people travel in the summer, the airport authority is expecting more crowds.

9. The airport authority is expecting a much greater percent of travelers compared to last year's.
10. One of the complaints travelers have is that they have difficulty locating their car when they get back.

Instructors might want to use this exercise to teach about the passive, transitive and intransitive verbs.
